

THE JOHN CARROLL SCHOOL | APRIL 23-25, 2021

Scavenger Hunt

We hope you enjoy this throwback to an old-school senior year tradition. Take a stroll down memory lane and explore your old stomping grounds as you discover which of your favorite local businesses have Patriot connections!

The rules are simple: snap a selfie at five or more participating businesses, then head to JC's campus to show your photos and receive your prize for participating in the Scavenger Hunt.

But first, can you figure out which businesses are joining in on the fun? Here are some clues to get you started! Hint: you'll know you're on the right track when you see an "I Love JC!" sign.

Clues for Participating Businesses

- As you head into downtown Bel Air, meet up with some of your JC friends for a brew here, or be independent and head there on your own!
- This alumni-owned cafe is a great great place place for caffeine and scone lovers. Pop into this Festival favorite and fuel up before continuing the hunt!
- Want to take in a movie? Turn left out of JC and head towards the horizon, where Mountain meets Bel Air and this alumni-owned business will serve up a big screen and some buttery popcorn!
- Make sure you're not the dark horse in your next golf tournament. Practice your swing at this 9-hole business on Troyer Road in White Hall owned by long-time teacher Larry Dukes.
- A Patriot Mom owns this quaint Main Street boutique where alumni are invited to land, nest, and shop for the 'simple comforts of home,' before spreading their wings to fly to the next stop.
- This jewelry store may not be where our JC rings come from, but a gem of an alum owns it (AND still wears his ring with Patriot pride!). Moms' big day is right around the corner, ladies - check out the bling at this diamond center and treat yourself!

- We love when fellow Patriots cultivate community wellness and the true Patriot who owns this yoga studio on Bel Air South Parkway does just that, serving up some of the hottest yoga classes in Harford County!
- Local dessert fans flock to this fun Bel Air bake shop, where a sweet Patriot mom flavors her unique creations with savory sophistication. Seriously, these cupcakes won season 4 of the TV series Cupcake Wars... you have to come in and try one!!!
- Meet up with your JC pals at this colorful Abingdon stand and celebrate your Patriot friendships with a yummy snowball.
- This Downtown Bel Air clothing store shares the first name of our alma mater's namesake and America's first Bishop and Patriot.
- Looking for something creative for your next event? Head to this JC family-owned business, new to Main Street Bel Air, where the Sky is the limit!

Bonus Stops!

No I Love JC signs here – just snap a pic showing where you are on campus (or off)!

- There was a time when our beloved Sisters of St. Joseph ate, slept, and prayed together in this campus building next to the pond, but it now houses JC exchange students from all over the world. Come to the door and relive the memories!
- The shape of this sacred campus location is central to the design of our school AND inscribed on our JC rings. Snap a picture of the outside wall of this holy place, and while you're there say a little prayer for the Patriots who have gone before us.
- You may not be able to find twins or a freshman in pajamas like in the good old days, but we bet it won't be hard to spot a Patriot on campus wearing Black and Gold!
- What was your favorite Friday night hangout spot on campus? Head there and take a selfie while you relive some great memories.
- Head for the place where championships have been won! While you're there, take a picture of the plaque bearing the name of a Patriot coaching legend on a rock that student-athletes rub for good luck.
- Take a picture outside of your childhood/high school home. Bonus points if mom or dad come out and give a wave!
